

walking the talk as a 'solutions partner'

At PP&S, partnering with your organization means we're vested in your success – even if it's sometimes outside the scope of our engagement with your firm.

While in the process of arranging an on-location engineering analysis, a customer asked our engineering services team if they could find a pump curve for a competitor's equipment line. After several requests, the customer had still not received a response from their local supplier. Our engineers were familiar with the line, and as with all inquiries, responded immediately to the request. The client emailed back: "This is what separates you guys from your competitors. I've been waiting 2 weeks for a curve from them, you produced it in one hour!"

"This is what PP&S' Brand Promise and culture is all about!" said Ray Miller, PP&S President, "We're not only about meeting our customer's expectations – our goal is to make partnering with PP&S an exceptional customer experience."

You can rely on PP&S to specify the best equipment type to support your process. Consult with our applications experts when planning to make a change to your application to be sure your current equipment is suitable and provides continuous operation.

ROI

time

success